MISS GRACE LUIS WINS TIMES-GAZETTE FIRST PRIZE

Mrs. A. Gearety Carries Off Honors In District No. 1 By Winning Essex Coach

At the stroke of ten Tuesday night the Times-Gazette's big circulation building campaign ended.

As a result, the paper's circulation, which had previously dominated the local field, became even more dominant by adding within the immediate trade area of Redwood City's merchants a host of new subscribers.

No attempt was made to build up a circulation outside of the immediate territory, where subscribers are of no avail to the city's advertisers, as it has alyays been the policy of this paper to equip itself to serve the merchants efficiently without burdening itself with unprofitable and unserviceable circulation.

Immediately on the stroke of the clock the doors of the contest office which has been the scene of great activity the past nine weeks, were closed and after the candidates had finished casting their last credits, the judges opened the ballot box and the counting began.

As a result of the nine weeks' battle of votes Miss Grace Luis of Pescadero won the first choice of the automobiles, the Studebaker Phaeton, while Mrs. A. Gearety was awarded the other capital prize and she also won the $100 extra cash prize.

First choice of the two second district prizes went to Miss Rose Lynch of Menlo Park in District No. 2. Second choice to Mrs. R. McIntosh, Miss Lynch receiving the $210 Radio set, purchased from R. A. Bowles of this city, and Mrs. McIntosh a cash prize of $100. Mrs. R. L. Connor in district No. 1 and Miss Mary Boos in District No. 2 each received a cash prize of $75. Miss Inez Jamieson in District No. 1 and Miss Dolly Simmons of Halfmoon Bay in District No. 2 each received cash prizes of $50.

In addition to these prize winners, all other contestants who remained active to the finish, according to the rules of the campaign, were presented with checks equivalent to 20 per cent of their entire collections.

The judges who took charge of the final count were all well known local men, whose decision was beyond a doubt without reproach. Their names appear above.

Redwood City, California, March 31, 1925.

We, the undersigned members of the executive committee appointed to have supervision of the Times-Gazette Free Gift Distribution concluded this date, and who have been selected to act as counting judges and auditors, certify and state that we have this date made a careful check and count of all ballots cast in this election, and find results to be as follows:

It is our belief that the campaign has been conducted in a fair and impartial manner to every one interested and concerned, and we comment the Times-Gazette and the campaign management for the businesslike methods employed in conducting the election.

We further find that the contestants whose names are hereby given, received the number of votes listed opposite their names and are declared the wineurs in their respective positions.

Signed:

J. J. WITTE
JOHN E. LAYNG

INEZ AMIESON, 5,271,700 votes, $50.00 Cash.

The successful candidates worked to the last minute. Eagerly they continued their canvassing until the last minute, and just before the campaign was formally closed, all envelopes from the postoffice were placed in the ballot box.

The judges finished their work only after a long period of strenuous work. They found hundreds of sugscriptions and thousands of coupons collected by candidates. Every receipt, money order, bill or coin was carefully checked and results tabulated. It was not until after midnight that the count was completed and the winner determined.

The Times-Gazette wishes to take this means of expressing its thanks and its sincere gratitude to every candidate in the list for his or her part in making the big campaign the rousing success it has been and to the public for the readiness with which it supported them. It is doubtful if there were many homes in the territory that were not vitally interested in the success of some one of the candidates.

More than anything else, the Times-Gazette appreciates the expresions of the various candidates, winners and losers, about the fairness and squareness of the entire campaign. It has been the constant aim of the management to conduct the campaign on an absolutely unquestionable plan, to make it fair and square in every detail to every one.

CITY PARKING LIMIT ZONE IS EXTENDED

The Board of Trustees of Redwood City last Monday voted to extend the present parking zone by including sections where business houses are annoyed by cars being left in front of their doors. This action was the result of a complaint made by E. B. Hinman, who stated that since the parking ordinance was being enforced on Main street that the cars were being left just around the corner on Stambaugh street so that they practically cut his store and Holmquists's shop off from the street.

Several other section of the town were also mentioned in this connection, among which were the block on Winslow street, south of Broadway, across from the station, and the block of Webster street just north of Broadway, as well as that part of main street in front of the French laundry and across the street.

The matter is now in the hands of City Attorney Mansfield who is changing the ordinance to include these portions.

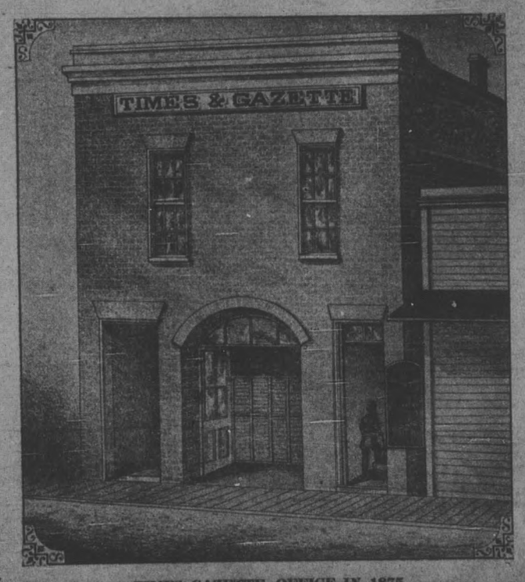
Early History of the Times-Gazette Told by Pioneer Local Journalist

More Than Fifty Years of Newspaper Work Recalled in Reminisences of Early Days in Redwood City And in Its First Newspaper

WITH this issue the Times-Gazette begins its sirty fifth year of continuous publication in Redwood City, during which time it has encountered all the vicisitudes of this growing town. It has recorded the stirring times of the Cival war, told with sorrow the story of the murder of Abraham Lincoln, and later of Garfield and McKinley. It has recorded the growth and changes in Redwood City; the coming of the railroad; the building of its public buildings; the formation of its lodges; and the beginning of its industries. More than that, it has been a record of the little social events which make up the life of the community, the births, the marriages and deaths which form so important a part of the current news.



TIMES GAZETTE OFFICE IN 1875

This building, the Gazette building was located on Main street, nearly opposite the Alhambra theatre, now the Masonic Temple. It was occupied by the Gazette until 1900.

The history of a paper like the Times-Gazette cannot fail to be of interest to anyone who cares for the history and traditions of Redwood City, linked as it is with the very life of the town, therefore we give herewith a brief history of the paper. For this we are indebted to J. V. Swift who spent many years on the Times-Gazette. The following paragraphs are extracts from a history of this paper written by Mr. Swift on the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the paper in 1909.

"It is first necessary to go back to my boyhood, and beginning at the remote date of 1879 the first day on which I entered the office as an apprentice, tell its history during the twenty years that I was on the working force.

"It was said when I became an employee of the office that the Times and Gazette was owned by the Spring Valley Water Company. Perhaps that is true. If it is, my respect for that company has not decreased. I recall as the owners of the paper, W. H. Lawrence, Senator Jas. D. Byrnes and Judge Jas. W. Bicknell, the president, secretary-treasurer of the San Mateo Publishing Co., the corporation that owned the paper. From my own dealings with those gentlemen and the esteem in which they were held I believe that the county has no better citizens. All three have long since passed away but their names will always have an honored place in the county's history.

"In those days the country paper was often an important factor in state affairs. That was before the metropolitan journals had become of such mammoth proportions and wide circulation. In this particular line the Times-Gazette was a notable example. Many of its editors were among the ablest men then engaged in journalism. H. N. Nutting was in charge of the paper during the early months of 1879, relinquishing its management to Thomas M. Cook, who had come from New York to write editorials for the Chronicle, but had a falling out with De Young and was taken by the local publishers. Cook was one of the most talented men in the country. During the Rebellion he served as war correspondent for the New York Sun and until he came to California had been connected with many large papers of New York City. He was a Democrat and often had trouble in smothering his own political leaning in his work here. This was noticeable in the Hancock-Garfield presidential campaign when Cook talked vigorously in one direction and wrote in the opposite. He was personally acquainted with General Hancock, and could not repress a desire to see him elected.

"For a period in 1881 Cook was separated from this paper and was succeeded by James W. Bowman, story writer, poet, and all around journalist of San Francisco. Bowman was to be revised by Judge Head. While intended to be a joke, the article so wounded the dignity of the two judicial gentlemen that both demanded, and he was dismissed.

"Cook returned to the paper and held on until 1882, when he resigned during the first Cleveland administration and went to Washington to take charge of the Star. He was followed by Andrew Morrison, a mandeb Bowman's preemtory relively young San Francisco reporter, who remained in charge for less than a year. Morrison proceeded to put some 'ginger' into the paper, and frequently wrote stories with a double man's reign was brief. One day he drifted into romance and wrote a story to the effect that Judge Bicknell was engaged in writing a book on the alluring game of Pedro, which meaning. Its appearance on Saturday morning would often cause a shudder in the strictly moral circles, and some of the ultra-godley were accustomed to remove it from their front steps with a pair of tongs. Petition after petition went up to San Mateo asking for the removal of the worldly young writer, but Lawrence liked Morrison and would not yield. His end came when he locked horns with a sensational young cleric who objected in an annomous letter to his reference the county's social set as 'gay and giddy'. Morrison retorted that the criticism 'smelled of surplice and the sanctuary,' he took occasion to lecture the brother upon the folly of meddling in worldly affairs. A delegation of horrified sisters went to Lawrence and demanded that the morals of the community be no longer contaminated by the presence of Morrison, and he was dismissed. Morrison went to Chicago, married, and it is said, is still in that city. He was a brilliant fellow and far from being as bad as represented. He was only amusing himself and a lot of others as well.

"L. W. Allum came over from Alameda in August 1882, and remained until October, and during his short stay proved himself an ass in many ways. The election was coming and in writing a report of the Democratic convention Allum said that its membership was made up of recent arrivals from the western coast of Ireland, Senator Byrnes dropped down from San Mateo and quietly told Allum to 'pull his freight.'

"Fremont Older, who had been a printer and business manager for the paper for several years, was then made its editor, and remained in charge until 1883. Older then went to San Francisco and quickly fell into the journalistic harness working on all papers. His talent was soon recognized and he became city editor of the Bulletin, a position which he has since held. He is recognized as one of tht ablest newspaper men of the country and is one of the most generous of men.

"J. A. Calhoun of San Francisco followed Older as editor. His administration is remarkable in that it was the opposite extreme of that of Morrison. Where Morrison affected the light and airy, and sometimes drifted into the so-called vulgar, Calhoun leaned toward the religious, and his columns teemed with the reports of church meetings and other matters of pious interest. The worldly members of the community remembering the downfall of Morrison, and seeing an opportunity to get even, began to complain and protest and finally Calhoun was dropped. When last heard from he was holding a position in the Oakland postoffice and was prospering.

"Ralph H. Smith took the place of Calhoun and in entering upon his duties assumed a labor of love. San Mateo county was the home of his childhood, and in its upbuilding he wrote and wrought with an earnestness that came from his soul. His lamentable death in 1886 is too well remembered to need detailed mention here. He was laid to rest in San Mateo where his youth was spent. The following lines written by a frend following his death more truthfully describes his character than any that might be supplied by me.

'Yet in these ears till hearing dies,
One slow bell seems to toll
The passing of the sweetiest soul
That ever looked with human eyes.'

"After the passing of Mr. Smith the management of the paper passed to Mrs. Smith and myself. Of this period of its history I need say little. We both worked hard, and while I do not testify to the ability of my associate, I fear that the files of the paper are a mute ackowledgement of my own callowness as a journalist."

Although Mr. Swift thus minimizes his own efforts on the Times-Gazette it is true that the paper under his editorship shows brilliant journalistic skill, and the period during which he occupied the sanctum was one eventful in affairs of local interest as well as for great changes of national policy. Mr. Swift continues:

"General John F. Sheehan came down from San Francisco to purchase the paper in 1889, and made me his news gatherer. Without meaning to reflect upon any of the present country publishers, I cannot help but say that during Sheehan's regime, San Mateo county, for the first and only time, had a real country paper, consisting of eight pages of news weekly. General Sheehan was not in possession long enough to demonstrate whether or not his venture would prove successful, as he failed to complete his purchase and the paper went back to the original owners.

"Charles N. Kirbride and R. N. Jary were next in charge and later Mr. Kirkride alone, and then his father, C. H. Kirkbride. In 1894 Frank H. Owen fluttered in with a crop of red side whiskers, followed by a retenue of lesser Owenses, some with whiskers, some without. Senator Byrnes listened to Owen's wild yarns of his worldly weatlh and witted, and Owens got possession of the paper on his mere promise to buy.

REDWOOD CITY'S ARISTOCRATIC HOTEL

This is the second American House and occupied a site on which the first American House burned down in 1863. This building burned in 1878. It was located on Main street, where the Redwood Painting Company's place now stands.

FIRST CHURCH BUILT IN REDWOOD CITY

The first church building in Redwood City was the Congregational church which occupies the same site as the present church. This church was started in November, 1862, when Rev. J. S. Zolie was pastor. It was dedicated on May 29, 1864, during the pastorate of Rev. G. W. Finney, and was later remodeled and rededicated on Feb. 26, 1873 when Rev. H. E. Jewett was pastor. After the earthquake of 1906 the building was restored and again dedicated under the pastorate of Rev. C. C. Kirtland. The present building was completed in December 1922, when Rev. C. H. Stevens was pastor.

THOMAS KANE DIED IN CITY LAST WEEK

Forty-five years ago a broth of a boy just out from Ireland dropped into Redwood City and decided to make this his home. His name was Tom Kane. He was tall and straight and had coal black hair. He went to work at the Frank Tannery and soon became one of the steady men there. For a while he stayed at the Farmer's Home. Forty years ago he went to board with Captain Jens Hanson. The Hansons lived in a big red house where the Intermediate school now stands. He was for thirty-five years the star boarder at the Hansons. He was frugal as well as industrious and although the wages at the tannery were not high he saved enough to take care of his wants in the old age. He and Michael Reynolds were cronies and were always together.

In 1915 he quit and after a month of idleness went up to the big city to make his home. The war started and Tom Kane came back to his job. He said that he was too old to fight but that he would take the place of some young fellow that could and would fight. So he worked at the old job until the war was over. His former pal had gone to San Francisco, so he and James Callahan became companions and after hours they were always together. A year ago Tom Kane moved to San Francisco and there last Wednesday he went out on the great adventure. We can imagine that he went with a smile on his face and a wave of the hand. There was never a happier dispositioned man in the town. He always had a cheery word and a wave of the hand as greeting for man or boy for he knew them all in the town where he spent most of a useful happy life.

The funeral of Mr. Kane was held April 1st, the services being at Mission Dolores church, where a requiem mass was said. Interment was at Holy Cross cemetery, Colma

REDWOOD CITY GIVE SCHOOL BONDS LARGE VOTE

The people of Redwood City are proud of their school system and are not going to see the school hampered by lack of funds. This was plainly shown last Friday night when the 500 votes cast at the Central school at the bond election were counted. Out of a total vote of 505 only 21 votes were found to oppose the issuance of the $90,000 asked by the trustees of the district to improve the schools of Redwood City.

The purpose for which the bonds are to be issued include enlarging the present buildings of the Washington and Lincoln schools, installing a new heating system in the Central school and purchasing land in North Fair Oaks and the Jefferson and Roosevelt avenue districts for building schools in the future.

At this election also, John Poole was elected to the trusteeship of the grammar school and J. D. Hedge and L. H. Brown to the Sequoia Union High School board of trustees, all three running without opposition.

WOODSIDE

Death reached out his hand for Leslie Burnett six years ago in the Argonne Forest but Burnett was a fighter and he fought back Death as he had fought the enemy in the trenches. With his body perforated with shell fragments he underwent eight major operations cheerfully and courageously as a part of the soldier's job. Three years ago he felt sufficiently strong to come to Woodside and start a squab raising business. But he had over-estimated his strength, the work was too great a demand upon his vitality and he had to return to the Letterman hospital. Here for some months and later at the hospital at Belmont, with the same fighting spirit, he continued the struggle against the grim reaper. But his injuries in France had handicapped him too greatly and on Monday morning he lost the battle. He was a direct descendant of Peter Burnett, first governor of California. Services were held in charge of the American Legion at Redwood City, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Burnett and her daughter will continue to reside in Woodside. Burnett is survived by three brothers and one sister. His loss is felt by many, as he made many friends and his genial disposition made him welcome everywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Schilling and their family have returned to Woodside for the summer season. The temporary house they have occupied in the past is to be replaced this summer by a permanent home.

Covington Pringle, Jr., was stricken with appendicitis last week and was hurried to a San Francisco hospital where an operation was performed immediately. From the effects of the operation he is recovering nicely and his parents hope to have him at home by Easter time.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolfino who have charge of the P. C. Hale place, report the arrival of a new daughter at the family home.

Neuman's store, which is more than a store, being a real institution at Woodside, is undergoing alterations. The office has been moved and the meat market is being advanced to a place of equal importance with the general merchandise establishment.

Hugh O'Neill, who has been convalescing from a serious illness, felt strong enough on Monday to take a run in his car. But he found his muscular control not yet sufficiently returned to hold a skidding car to a wet pavement so he rolled into the ditch. He had to be towed home.

The pupils of the local school are hailing with delight the prospect of the coming Easter vacation. There is no doubting the fact that three months of steady grind dulls the edge of enthusiasm for intellectual attainment.

David Collie, who for many years has been engaged in the nursery business here, will leave shortly for his boyhood home in Scotland.

THE IRRISTIBLE IMPULSE

WAY back in the early days of our race, two brothers named Cain and Abel got into an argument concerning the relative merits of farming and sheepraising. The talk waxed warm and finally Cain picked up a scantling and hit his brother over the head with it. He didn't know his own strength, however, and the coroner's jury that sat on the case, rendered a verdict of fratricide, because of an irristible impulse.

As punishment Cain was exiled from Paradise. They didn't hang him. Perhaps the trees were too small, or perhaps they didn't have material to build the gallows, but at any rate they hadn't come to the gentle idea of an eye for an eye or a life for a life. So Cain became a wanderer and he left his brand or curse or whatever you would call it upon those of his family who came after him. He was hot tempered, ungovernable perhaps; a slow thinker but he had a strong right arm.

Since Cain's time there have been thousands of murderers. There will probably be thousands more during the coming century. The plea is usually "temporary insanity" or "irristible impulse." Both terms mean just the same thing. Few people would ever kill unless they were insane at the time the deed was done. Sometimes the killer escapes. Perhaps she killed her sweetheart because he had an incurable disease. Perhaps he and his friend killed to get a thrill when the victim was passing through the death struggle, or perhaps it was a jazz girl who killed the mother who remonstrated with her because of her waywardness.

There are always people who would condone a crime. Personally we are sorry for those who break the laws. We wouldn't hang a murderer, but we would place the murdered where could never kill again. We feel that the girl who is now being tried in San Francisco for the murder of her mother is a victim of conditions. She wasn't sane when she did the awful crime that has brought her world attention, but she would never be safe to be at large. The irrisitible impulse might come again, so she and every other killer should be put away as a safe guard for civilization. Not only would a girl of this character be a menace to others but as a potential mother she might begin a family that would have the brand of Cain upon it. While she is an object of sympathy, she is too dangerous a woman to be allowed her freedom.

Irristible impulse is no excuse. It is, however, a good reason for a life sentence in the penitentiary.

MORAL SUASION

EVERY once in a while the old question of corporal punishment comes up, and strange as it may seem there are some people who believe in it. All of the modern idea of education is that we should guide children by love. We should never in any way impart an idea of fear into their minds. It is thought that we should so educate the child that he will do right because he wishes to and not because of the fear of punishment.

The ideal democracy will contain men and women who know no fear and who live clean, upright, virtuous lives for the love of the ideal, and for the joy of living. But nineteen hundred and now isn't the time of the ideal democracy. There are people who keep straight because of the fear of punishment. If the rod were used more often we believe there would be fewer headlines in the papers.

We should put some fear into the hearts of the youth of today. We don't want to hold a hickory stick or a black strap in our hand while talking to and teaching the youth. Punishment should be used sparingly. We should rule by love whenever we can, but it is necessary to put a fear of the Lord and a respect for the law into the heart of the youth of today. There would be feyer broken-hearted mothers, feyer babies to be adopted and fewer boys and girls in the reform school if a little of the old-fashioned hickory stick were applied every once in a while. There are so many things to break the old order of things. So many autos. So many movies. So many dances. So much moonshine that a little fear correctly implanted now and then may be a bit of saving grace for some lad or lass.

THE MENLO FIRE ELECTION

THE voters of the Menlo Park Fire District will on April 6 have the opportunity of voting for a fire commissioner to succeed Clarence Walter, whose term expires at that time.

At the election Monday Mr. Walter will be a candidate to succeed himself, and in view of the service which he has rendered his district since its formation we believe that he should be given the most serious consideration of every voter. The service which the commission of which Mr. Walter has been one of the most active members, has rendered to the community may be summed up as follows:

Taxes have been kept from 60 to 70 percent lower than the commission was entitled by law to levy. In 1916 the commission was entitled to levy a tax of $38,000. It levied a tax of $16,00. From 1918 to 1924 it has been entitled to levy a tax of $19,00. The taxes actually levied by the commission have been continuously under half of this sum and generally less.

In spite of the unusually low taxes, the commissioners have been able to furnish their district with a fire department which is claimed by the fire underwriters to be one of the best country departments in the state.

Due consideration should be given to these facts by the voters at the polls next Monday. Such a record should not go unrewarded.

THE LAW AND LAWMAKERS

ACCORDING to current dispatches the city attorney of Monterey does not have to obey the law. It was decided by the mayor of the town that the city attorney was not affected by the auto parking law which was recently passed by that city. When arrested for parking his car too long on the streets he was released on this account.

We cannot imaging a condition like this existing at the present time in a California city. We know that many persons in the fuedal times were above the law, but we thought that that condition had long ago ceased to exist.

A law which applies to one should apply to all. If John Smith cannot park his car in Monterey, there is no reason why the mayor of the town or the president of the United States should be allowed to do so. Such rulings defeat the law, and renders it ridiculus in the eyes of sane people.

The item from Monterey does not state that the attorney is exempt from all law, but there is no reason why one ordinance should be selected above all others. If the city attorney can break one law, why not another? Or why cannot every city official? Occasions of this kind are the first steps toward despotism, the first advances of special priviledge. The people of Monterey should see tha the law is obeyed by city officials as well as others.

A LONG, LONG TIME

Pioneer Resident Recalls Early Days Along The Streets of Redwood

The editor has asked me to write a few reminiscence of Redwood City as it was day before yesterday and the day before that so just to please him and perhaps give a little idea of an old-time California small town I shall try to pen some sort of a picture of life here through a considerable period of time.

Its pretty nearly fifty years ago that our family came to town and as the small boy of the family I knew everybody and everything about the place that was worth knowing. It might be of interest to relate that when Joe Holder and Cap Fogg came here as the first residenters, the community that soon sprang up was caleld Embarcadero. Soon Mr. S. E. Mezes who had been given the Spanish grant called the De Las Pulgas, which took in all of the section from the foothills to the bay and from Belmont to the north line of Palo Alto, called the little settlement, Mezesville. So it was Mezesville ntil 1856 when some fellow changed it to Redwood City and Redwood City it has been ever since.

Not withstanding that there were no redwoods in town except the tall young one behind Chamberlain's store the name struck and the growing community became the county seat. There was nothing much to boast about in the olden days except that we had a creek that came right up to the middle of town and many is the boat that put off its load at the Broadway bridge. All of the sewage ran into the creek and on a sunny summer night there was many a smell that didn't make us think of violets but we always boasted that it was the healthiest town in the county. Then, too, Redwood had more saloons than any other town of its size in California, and besides that there were two breweries that sometimes had to work at night.

So Redwood was a friendly town. Most of us learned to swim at the Bend but the favorite swimming hole was under the railroad bridge just back of the Central grammar school. The trains were few and in my days I never knew there was such a thing as a bathing suit. Mother Nature's coat of tan was all the covering we needed and from May to October we were sunburned and browned and had stone bruises on our feet and there was one kid named Roose whose feet used to get so tough that he could jump on broken glass and not cut himself.

The Germania hall was the big building of the town and we had a show every two or three months and a fair which lasted a week was a regular institution. The Grand hotel was THE hostelry of the place. The Farmer's Home was for the poorer people. I remeber after Gotlob Triholet bought the Farmer's Home he had a cook nemed Charley Woder. Charley was a big fat fellow and was a good cook. He was famous for his soup. It was no uncommon sight at noon time to see from five to ten youngsters with big pitchers or tin cans at the back door of the Farmer's Home. The mother of the flock had sent them with a dime to get some of Charley's soup and the dime was enough for a supply for a whole meal. And speaking about the dimes worth of soup, many a kid in the olden days had to rush the "growler" and bring home a can of beer during the sultry days of summer. "Them was the days," and a nickle and a big can brought home enough steam for the whole family.

The site of the S. P. depot and the postoffice was in that time the shingle yard and how we hated to pass the place at nights. A bunch of hobboes were always sure to be parked there for the night and although they never molested anyone we always knew that the time would come when they might. But they never did.

I could go on and tell of the muddy streets and the fights and the Fourth of July celebrations that were real celebrations but I think this is enough for one reading so I will sign off and listen to KGO.

Threat Was Too Much

Publick Occurrences, which appeared in Boston, Mass., September 25, 1690, was the first newspaper in America. It started out well by promising to print all the news without fear or favor, and to promote the interests of Boston. It also promised that in its next issue it would publish the names of all the liars in Boston. The authorities, taking notice of the threat, forbade publication, so Publick Occurrences gave up in disgust and died.

A. & C. Oil Company Drill Five Wells on Cardoza Ranch

J. H. Craft of the A. & C. Oil Company of Taft has returned to Half Moon Bay after a week's business trip spent in Taft and Los Angeles. While there Mr. Craft made arrangements for rig builders to come to Halfmoon Bay and build a derrick on the Antone Cardoza ranch just two miles south of town on the coastside boulevard. The above company intends to drill five shallow oil wells on their lease after which they will go after deeper oil sands. They figure that the five wells will furnish enough natural gas to be used as fuel and the production of gasoline will pay all future operations. They will run three eight-hour shifts.

Elected Delegate to Grande Lodge of I. O. O. F.

Pat Cardoza was elected by the Ocean View lodge of I. O. O. F. as a delegate to the Grand Lodge to be held in San Francisco commencing on May 12th.

The Coastside of San Mateo County Has Many Things of Interest

We feel that there are many people who live in the Redwood City district that have never visited the coastside of San Mateo county they do not realize what they are missing and if the trip is once made they will come to see it many times again. The coastside is the natural playground of the entire country. It has wonderful beaches for fishing and swimming, and it is known to be the home of the abalone, mussell and eel. We guarantee all visitors the time of their lives which they always will remember. Our wooded sections are the pretties in the state and the second largest virgin timber aria is located just south of Pescadero. Come and see us. You will come again.

Fire Commissioner to be Elected Monday, April 6th.

A fire commissioner election will be held here on Monday, April 6th. There is only one candidate. M. P. Dutra is up for re-election. He has rendered good service for the Halfmoon Bay Fire district and the voters are going to show their appreciation by giving him a large complimentary vote.

Recent Rains Have Been Big Help to Entire Coastside

The rains have been done much good in this section. The green pea crop is growing nicely, likewise the grain and hay crops will be the biggest in many a year. EAST PALO ALTO

Plans are made for a large crowd to hear the Community Players in "Mr. Bob" tonight in the school auditorium on Donahue street. This is the third play given by them. Their first play, "All a Mistake," was given four times, twice in Palo Alto and once in Mayfield. Their second play, "The King of the Phillipines," also presented as a benefit for the '49er club, was played last November. This production is given for the purpose of buying scenery for the stage. This has had to be rented for their plays heretofore. The cast for "Mr. Bob" is made up of Heber Epperson, Charles Self, Carroll Da Mant, Miss Mary Drake, Mrs. Douglas Walker, Mrs. Jesse Lloyd and Mrs. Lawrence Faber. The play will be presented tonight at eight o'clock. Adults 25c, children 15c.

This community seems to be the field for auto thieves as well as burglaries of late. Guests at the O. D. Wells home on Cooley aenue, Saturday evening left their car standing on Cooley avenue in front of the house and on starting home found the lights disconected and a wheel and new balloon tire stolen. The next night the garage of Pierce Barron on Donahoe street was entered and a car stripped. The grounds at the school will be patroled during the play tonight as a protection to the machines.

Henry Barellies has been moved from the Palo Alto hospital and Mrs. George Hansen from the Community hospital to be under the care of specialists in San Francisco hospitals.

The Dumbarton Grange will meet next Tuesday evening for their regular meeting in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

There was much more interest than usual in the school election Friday. A big vote was polled from the outside. Mrs. Lenn Follett was elected as trustee of the grammar school and L. H. Brown and Jas. Hedge both received a good vote for the Sequoia high school trusteeships.

Actual work on the approach to the bridge at Dumbarton on this side of the bay has started and the number of machines going out to the work every morning would indicate a good force on the job. Cooley avenue is a busy thoroughfare during the morning and evening hours with the additional travel and the Bay road over from Menlo Park is just as busy.

Prof. A. E. Montieth Talks To The Local Kiwanis Club

Value of Education to the Growing Boy Told By Superintendent of Redwood City Elementary School System

One of the best meetings of the local Kiwanis club was held Tuesday in the Sequoia Grill. The meeting was under the chairmanship of D. W. Williams, who was introduced by the president, James D. Hedge. The main speaker of the day was A. E. Monteith, principal of the local elementary school department. The topic which Professor Monteith chose for his talk was "The Money Value of an Education." His remarks were interesting and instructive in the extreme and are given at length below.

Other speakers were Father C. E. Kennedy who told of his visit to a district meeting held at Los Gatos last week, and Dr. H. A. Clattenburg who gave a comical talk on his experiences. Several visitors were present from Palo Alto.

Mr. Monteith's speech was in part as follows:

The tendency of our day is to measure all things in terms of dollars and cents. This applies to education as well as to other forms of more or less speculative investments. The results of an education can no more be measured in terms of dollars and cents than can honor, courage, and can love be measured with a score card or a yard stick.

A noted chemist has found that the net material value of an average 150-pound human being is 98c. He contains enough water to wash a pair of blankets, enough iron to make a ten-penny nail, magnesium enough to explode a toy cannon, lime enough to white-wash a chicken coop, and enough sulphur to kill the fleas on a good-sized dog. All these elements can be purchased at the drug store for 98c. Yet Germany put in a claim at the end of the war for $72,000 for every fourteen-year-old German boy killed. The mere mechanical power alue of a man is only about $10 to $25.

Before the war a ton of iron ore was worth $3.50 to $4.00; if melted into pig iron it was worth $13 to $15; if pressed into steel rails, $28 to $30; if made into crowbars, $35 to $40; ten penny nails, $50 to $60; carpet tacks, $200; sewing machine needles, $5,000; and if made into hair springs for watches, $10,500,000.

The same thing can be shown for millions of articles. A load of sand in itself is of little value, but if after skilful refinement it finds its way into some famous make of lenses, its value has been increased a thousandfold. A small piece of canvas, a few brushes, and a little paint can be bought for a few dollars, but add to this a Millet or a Rembrandt, and you have a picture worth $150,000 to $500,000. It is not the materal or the mechanical power that goes into a product which produces its worth, but genius and skill.

If we seek to find an explanation of the phenomenal growth of Germany during the last half of the nineteenth century; a nation with limited resources, but excellent schools; and of the comparative sluggishness of her neighbor, Russia, which has a vigorous and talented national stock and vastly better resources, but poor educational facilities, we must come to the conclusion that education alone can account for it.

Prior to the World war it was said that the earning power of the Oriental farmer with his bullock and stick plow was 6c a day. The Russian peasant farmer with his crude tools, yet better than those of his Oriental neighbors, was able to earn 14c a day; but in American where the farmers used the most scientific methods, his daily earnings are many times those of the farmers of less enlightened nations.

It has been shown time and again that the earning capacity of a people is in direct proportion to the efficiency of its school system. The necessity for an education is steadily growing. Commerce, industry, the professions the business of making a living of saving money and of life is becoming more and more complicated. In the Colonial days life was relatively simple. The virgin soil was fertile and game abounded in every valley and on every hillside. Manufactured articles were made in the home; but today it is all changed and we are dependent one upon another.

Does education pay? Let us see what the investigator has to say: Pre-war salaries of the New York Bridge Department throw some light on this question. Positions demanding only reading writing and arithmetic, the conventional three "r's" if you please, paid $982 yearly; positions demanding high school and commercial education, $1,792; and positions demanding two or three years' college or technical training in addition to high school paid $2,400.

Every day spent in school pays the child more than $10. This has been found by figuring up the amount earned by people who leave school at the eighth grade, or before, for a period of years; then calculating what high school graduates earn for a like period, subtracting the two sums and dividing by the number of days spent in school. Let us take a specific case and see how it works

The uneducated laborers earn on the average of $982 per year, or forty years a total of $39,280.

The high school graduates earn on an average $1,729 per year, or forty years a total of $69,160.

This education required twelve years of school of 180 days each, a total of 2,160 days in school. If 2,160 days in school adds $29,880 to the income over forty years, then each day in school is worth $13.83.

In Brooklyn it was found that those who left school at the age of fourteen and worked until they were twenty-five had earned on an average a total salary of $5,112.50—this for eleven years of work. Those who left school four years later at the age of eighteen had in the seven years remaining before they were twenty-five earned $7,337.50. In other words in four years less time the high school graduates had earned over $2,000 more money. From the money side it pays and pays well, to continue one's education.

The Standard Oil Company enploys no office boy who has not been to high school. Every office boy is a potential administrator. The company knows that the high school boy is better stuff for its administrative force than is the elementary school boy.

What is a boy worth? has been often been asked and has been answered in this way. A boy is worth just what we make him. This means years of culture and of toil. The young mind must be trained and nourished until the man asserts itself. The boy, his teacher, and his God, these three are essential in molding his life and character.

Boys are nuggets of gold from which the coin of manhood is made. Boys, like electricity, send their currents along the line. No one can tell when the influence begins or where it ends.

A boy has no cash value in his mother's heart. His worth is beyond rubies. The boy does not develop every virtue at once. Like the orange tree they bear blossoms and fruit at the same time. Right principles like good seed grow, but it takes the sunshine of kindness and understanding to bring it to fruitation.

Whether the fig tree withers or not depends upon its environment. Environments help to make the boy what he is. In most boys there are some savage instincts that must be dealth with wisely. These instincts have no place in mature manhood, but they must be eliminated gradually. The tadpole has a tail that disappears when he becomes a frog, but if you cut off the tadpoles tail he never becomes a fully developed frog. The analogy is plain.

The boy who never had a desire to do something will never amount to much. Don't think that the boy is on the way to perdition because at some time he did tie a can to the tail of the neighbor's dog. You can't put an old head on such young shoulders.

What is a boy worth? We said a while ago that he is worth what we make him. Then, wise parents who have interest in their boy, and most of them have, will strive to educate him and make him of the greatest possible worth. Parents need not be discouraged when their children seem unpromising. Walter Scott, as a boy, was dull but the dullard of the school became the wizard of literature. Isaac Newton who became the most famous mathematacian of the age, seemed in childhood to have a skull so thick that the teacher could not pound into it the multiplication table.

Treat your boy like a man and he will generally act like one. Appeal to the best in the boy. Appeal to his manhood, his judgment, because a boy is responsive to such appeals.

Our only source of supply for material with which to make the men of tomorrow is the boys of today. A boy is a man in cocoon. His life is big with possibilities. He may make and unmake kings; change boundary lines between states; write books that will revolutionize the commerce of the world. Be patient with him. Destiny waits just around the corner.

What a strange admixture of contrary parts a boy is. He is both obedient and obstinate, manly and mean, courageous and cowardly, but with all the most interesting study on the face of the earth.

We may talk of great national problems, all we like, and some of them are momentous to be sure, but friends, the home is the unit of our society, and the fountain head of all that is best in our civilization. The environment of the home is the essential thing in the building of good citizenship.

The American home is the place where respect for law and government must have its roots. Every year the public spends millions of dollars for police protection and for the enforcement of the law and for the education of children in the fundamentals of useful citizenship. The home is the place where good citizenship teaching must originate, notwithstanding the fact that all the men and women are laid at the door of the schools. If the ills and scandals of the younger generation are ever remedied it will only come when the home raises the standards of the instruction it imparts. No matter how much work the school may do a lack of moral example and instruction in the home will mean defeat for the spirit of law enforcement and law observance.

Is there any incentive for the boy or girl to stay at home even one night a week. What are we doing for them? Do we offer any attractions. A cowhide in its rough state is a mighty crude article. Work with it, give it systematic treatment and you have a beautiful Russian leather. Take the boy, work with him, play with him, your interest his interest, and you have the finished product of all there is in life.

The great question before most American homes and some American communities is amusement for the young. Sometimes these appears to be room for question as to the wisdom of such strenuous organized efforts that are made to provide amusement for the youngsters. Some pretty useful generations of Americans grew up with their boyhood and girlhood years fairly well filled with the chores and the necessary household tasks that taught them selfreliance and something of the responsibilities which were to be theirs in adult life. Some one has to do that same kind of work now around every home. It might be better for some of our young folks today if these jobs were made a part of their every-day routine. It would, at least, keep them under parental influence for the time being.

Education is something more than going to school for a few weeks each year. It is more than knowing how to read and write. It has to do with character, and good citizenship. Education should help to do away with vulgarity, pauperism, crime and disgrace. The boy who leaves school and shifts for himself by blacking boots, selling papers and swiping fruit often appears much smarter than a boy of the same age who is going to school all the time and does not see much of the world. The boy of the world who has lived by his wits is often keener than a boy of the same age who has been well brought up at home and at school, but a boy knows about as much and is about as much of a man at twelve as he will ever be, while the boy that gets an education becomes more and more of a man as long as he lives.

Men: Our boys of today are our business men of tomorrow. The responsibility is ours.

Let us invest in boys, not our money, but ourselves. Make our homes a part of his playground. It will help you to keep young. It will help your confidence in men. When you come to the sunset of life, you will find the boy of yesterday a man, big and clean and strong, all because of you. He will build into realities your dreams, and, as the portals open wide for you, you will read, "Welcome," on the threshold, and your admission card will be marked—PAID.

you do need ice in Spring

The weather doesn't have to be scorching to make ice a real necessity wherever perishable foods are kept. Even at 50°, milk begins to deteriorate and bacteria multiply a thousand fold. Other foods lose much of their nutritive value, even before they actually spoil. It doesn't pay to try to do without ice in Spring. Ice protects your health and pays for itself in the food it saves.

Cleaning Without Odor by the

F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded by our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dust but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is redistilled and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline—the kind that you buy for your automobile—is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. It is little better than ordinary distillate and leaves a sickening "gasoline" smell in your clothes

Household Hints

IS FAMILY GETTING RIGHT KIND OF FOOD?

Fruits and Vegetables Are Necessary for Family.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Your family will get the right kind of food, according to the bureau of home economics, United States Department of Agriculture, if the day's meals contain food from each of the following groups: (1) Fruits and vegetables; (2) meat, poultry, eggs, fish, milk and cheese; (3) bread, breakfast foods, and other cereals; (4) fats; and (5) sweets. It is not necessary to have each group represented at every meal, although this is often a convenient way for the housekeeper to be sure that all the kinds of food needed have been served. Some food from each group should appear at least once a day. Fruits and vegetables should be used as often as possible, and if there are children, pure, whole milk is indispensable.

Fruits and Vegetables.

Fruits and vegetables supply minerals, vitamines, and "roughage" necessary for normal growth and health. It is a good plan to grow as many of them as possible in the home garden. The surplus may be stored, dried, or canned for the winter.

Meat, poultry, eggs, milk, cheese, and fish supply efficient protein for building body tissues, and, to some extent, minerals and vitamines. When home slaughtering is done, the meat supply can be extended by curing or canning any surplus. If a flock of chickens is kept, eggs will be supplied the year around, and some of the chickens may be used on the table. Children especially need milk and butter, and they are equally good foods for all other members of the family as well. Fresh milk should always be given to children if possible; otherwise dried or evaporated milk may be used.

Foods Supply Energy.

Bread, breakfast foods, and other cereals, among which may be mentioned rice, hominy grits, cornmeal, and foods made of flour, supply energy and some protein, in an economical form. If some whole-grain products are used, they will supply minerals and vitamines also.

Fats and sweets supply energy. Enough of each should be used to make the meals appetizing, but large quantities of either are unnecessary and unwholesome.

Farmers' Bulletin 1313, Good Proportions in the Diet, gives further details on feeding the family. It may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., while the supply lasts.

COCOA BREAD MAKES ACCEPTABLE NOVELTY

Addition of Dried Fruits Produces Palatable Loaf.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cocoa bread, which affords an attractive variation for lunch or afternoon tea, may be made by using ordinary bread formulas with slight changes. Since cocoa contains about 20 per cent of fat, other shortening may be used in smaller quantities or omitted entirely. Additional sugar must be used to overcome the bitterness of the cocoa, some cocoas requiring more than others. Ordinarily, if in addition to the quantity required by the formula an amount of sugar equal to that of the cocoa is added, the bread will be neither bitter nor sweet. This large quantity of sugar somewhat retards the fermentation, thus increasing the time over that needed for making white bread. Cocoa bread, however, when made with the large quantity of sugar remains fresh longer than ordinary bread, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

The quantity of sugar may be reduced by using some spice or additional salt. Care must be taken, however, not to use an excess of either; too much spice masks the flavor of the cocoa, and too much salt retards the action of the yeast even more than a large quantity of sugar.

Try Cocoa Bread.

The amount of cocoa may be varied to suit individual tastes. The substitution of one-tenth of the flour by cocoa gives the bread a distinct cocoa color and flavor.

All cocoa bread is dark, the depth of color varying with the quantity of cocoa used. Aside from the color, there is very little difference in appearance between the cocoa bread and white bread; the shape of the loaves, the volume, the texture of grain, and the elasticity are about the same.

The recipe may be varied by using honey or other sweetening agents in place of ordinary sugar and by adding fruits or nuts. The incorporation of three or more ounces of raisins, prunes, roasted peanuts, etc., in the dough of each pound loaf of cocoa bread produces a very palatable loaf. The fruits or nuts may be added when the dough is first worked down or "punched."

Cocoa rolls, buns, and rusks are also acceptable. They may be made slightly sweet by using more sugar than is used in the bread.

Cocoa bread is a specialty and cannot be expected to replace the different types of bread now being made, but it is an acceptable novelty to serve occasionally.

PEANUT BUTTER HAS MANY VARIOUS USES

Some Uncommon Ways to Give Flavor to Meals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here are some out-of-the-ordinary ways of using peanut butter to give zest and flavor to the meals. The United States Department of Agriculture has a circular, No. 128, on the manufacture and use of peanut butter, containing many other suggestions.

Peanut Butter Salad Dressing.

½ cupful sour cream	¼ tablespoonful sugar
2 tablespoonfuls peanut butter	½ teaspoonful salt
2 tablespoonfuls vinegar	¼ teaspoonful mustard
1 egg	⅛ teaspoonful paprika

Parched Cornmeal Biscuits.

½ cupful yellow cornmeal	1 cupful peanut butter
1 teaspoonful salt	1½ cupfuls water

Put the meal into a shallow pan and heat in the oven until it is a delicate brown, stirring frequently. Mix the peanut butter and water, add salt, and heat. While the mixture is hot, stir in the meal, which also should be hot. Beat thoroughly. The dough should be of such consistency that it can be dropped from a spoon. Bake in small cakes in an ungreased pan.

Peanut Butter Salad Wafers.

1 cupful cornmeal	½ cupful peanut butter
1 cupful wheat flour	1 teaspoonful salt
	½ cupful milk

Mix together, roll out very thin, and cut out. Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Oyster and Vegetable Stew Recommended

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Turnip, cabbage, celery, and onion may be added to an oyster stew to make it quite different from the kind ordinarily served. In the course of a series of experiments with the preparation of vegetables intended to develop quick methods of cooking them, this recipe has been evolved by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. It will undoubtedly appeal to those who are fond of oysters and may be planned as the main dish for lunch or supper.

Oyster and Vegetable Stew.

1 cupful potato water.	½ cupful celery, chopped fine.

Boil the turnip in the potato water for five minutes. Then add the shredded cabbage and the onion and cook for ten minutes. Add the oysters, salt, and butter and cook for a few minutes until the oysters curl at the edge. Add the celery just before serving. A little thickening may be used if desired, for the liquor comes out of the oysters as they cook.

PERFUME ON CLOTHES; WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

Perfume may be all right in some places but not on a husband's clothes, according to Mrs. Clara D. Broner, who this week filed suit against Peter D. Broner, charging him with cruelty and with going around with other women. When the defendant returned at one or two in the morning he would explain that he was "out with the boys," according to the complaint filed by Mrs. Broner, while he in reality was out with female companions whose pictures she found in his possessions, the complaint states.

The couple were married in San Francisco in 1902 and have two children, one 21 and one 18 years of age. According to the plaintiff Broner has continued to love a woman he was in love with before their marriage.

PAUL X. SMITH, Mgr.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

By C. W. TURNER

Sacramento.—Three measures before the legislature have attracted more than usual attention because of their very great importance or because of the opposition which they have developed.

The first of these is a bank bill introduced by the Bank of Italy which proposes to allow banks to establish branches in communities where twenty per cent of those to be served by the branch sign a petition asking for its establishment. The Bank of Italy claims that it has not been allowed to establish the branches it desires in Los Angeles because its home office is in San Francisco. The California Bankers' association, through its president, and the superintendent of banks, through his attorney, James Oliver, oppose the bill, claiming that it would throw open the door to an unlimited number of branch banks and utterly demoralize the banking interests of the state. Fundamentally of course the contest is the differences between the banks with branches and the "unit" banks which has been raging now for some years.

Another measure of more general interest than the question of branch or no branch banks is the issue as to whether there shall be a tax of one cent added to the price of gasoline, the money so raised to be spent upon road building. It is admitted that unless some large sum of money can be raised speedily, highway extension in California must cease. The money now on hand and in sight has all been appropriated and yet there are miles of road clamoring to be built.

Two methods, everyone agrees, can be employed to raise the money: a bond issue; the tax on gasoline. The oil companies are fighting the tax on the ground that it will injure their business and is a sales tax. Senator Breed, who is the author of the proposed tax increase, says that their opposition is based upon the allegation that the highway builders in this state do not use all the asphalt that they should in the construction of the roads, and as asphalt is a by-product of the oil, it is of great interest to the companies to have it used as much as possible. By fighting the tax, the senator argues that they hope to force an increased use of their product. The companies of course deny the senator's allegation, saying that the more roads that are built the more asphalt would be used. To which Breed replies by calling attention to the fact that in Oregon they did not oppose a two cent instead of a one cent raise, because the use of asphalt in road building is far more extensive, he claims, in that state than in California.

Meantime, the committee on revenue and taxation and finance refuse to pass any appropriation for roads unless the highway commission presents a detailed budget of how the money they receive is expended, and the special objects as there set forth are embodied in the bill making an appropriation for highway work.

In a general way the northern end of the state is solidly for the increased taxation, and a goodly portion of the south, although in that section there is more opposition than in any other part of California.

Reno and the state of Nevada are to hold an exhibition next year to celebrate the opening of the new national highway across the continent. Mrs. Woodbridge of Roseville has introduced a bill making an appropriation of $100,000 to pay for the representation of California (erecting a building and preparing the exhibit) at the exhibition. The governor and other leading citizens of Nevada appeared before the legislature asking for the appropriation, but they were bitterly opposed by the Protestant clergymen of Reno and the Women's Christian Temperance Union, reinforced by a number of clergymen and members of the union in Sacramento. The opposition was due to the immorality, which they claimed was rampant in Reno and to the fact that Nevada has no state prohibition law. The debate over the bill between the two factions was very intense and bitter at times.

A bill has been passed providing for the sale of tags to hunters to be used in tagging deer when the latter are killed. The idea is to keep tap on the number of deer killed each hunting season.

As usual there is a bill to abolish capital punishment. It is backed by the labor unions, but apparently there is very little chance of it being passed, and if it were it is certain to encounter the veto of Governor Richardson, who has placed himself very squarely in opposition to too much leniency to murderers.

There is considerable opposition to the Deuel bill which would create the position of director of education and deprive the state superintendent of much of his power and privileges

Adjutant General Mittelstaedt announced, upon his return from Washington, that he had obtained authority from the war department to increase the strength of the California National Guard by 400 men by July 1. The authority applies to the infantry only. The additional men will give the California guard a total enrollment of approximately 6,000.

Secretary Wilbur anticipates active revival of discussion of the Alameda naval base project when congress reconvenes next winter.

NEWS OF MENLO PARK

If the taxpayers of Menlo Park are true to themselves they will come to the polls next Monday and vote for Clarence R. Walter for fire commissioner to succeed himself. He has served the district faithfully and well and the voters should show their appreciation of his services by giving him an overwhelming vote of confidence.

A big crowd of citizens of Menlo Park turned out Wednesday night to see the fire prevention films in Menlo Theatre. The reels were interesting and some useful information on how to prevent fire was given. The fire commissioners, A. G. C. Hahn, Charles Merrill and Clarence R. Walter, were present and made speeches. Mr. Merrill expained the cost of the films and other expenses were paid by the commissioners and that the commissioners often paid their own expenses in going to San Francisco and other places in the interest of the fire department. Mr. Hahn gave a graphic history of the department from its inception showing the wonderful growth of the department. Mr. Walter made a rousing address during which he solicited the votes of the people of Menlo Park. He demonstrated by figures the large sums saved by him for the department. In the purchase of supplies and equipment Walter received tremendous applause as he finished his spirited address.

The rain fall for the last storm was 2 inches, making a total of 12.75 inches for the season. This is about normal. At this time last year the rainfall was 9.23 inches.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton have opened their pretty home in the foothills back of Atherton. Mrs. Hamilton has just returned from a visit to her father, John D. Spreckels, at San Diego.

Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan was a guest of Leon Douglass during the week. The judge is no stranger to this community, having spent his boyhood on a farm near the San Francisquito creek.

The first annual breakfast of the Menlo Park Study Club was held in the Cardinal hotel, Palo Alto Wednesday last. About fiftey members and guests were present to enjoy the toothsome viands of the season. The speakers at the breakfast were: Mrs. Edward J. Wales, president San Francisco federation; Mrs. L. E. Aubury, president San Mateo County federation; Mrs. Hamilton Riggins, correspondent; Mrs. J. M. Vickerson, instituting officer of Menlo Park Study Club. The musical program was as follows: Mrs. William Moore, vocal solo. Mrs. E. Gardner, select reading, Mrs. Oscar Bradley, instrumental selections.

Miss Loretta Foley, sister of Mrs. C. T. Maloney, passed away at St. Joseph's hospital in San Francisco last Wednesday following a capital operation. The young woman was a native of San Francisco but for many years resided with her aged mother at Burlingame, where she was highly esteemed and liked. She is survived by her two brothers, B. Foley, John Foley, Mrs. C. T. Maldeny and Mrs. Marron and her mother, Mrs. Mary Foley. The deceased often visited her sister and was well known in Menlo Park.

The school trustee election on Friday of last week recalled the contests that used to take place in Menlo Park over a quarter of a century ago when the school elections overshadowed the presidential contest in point of interest. At the election on Friday there were 425 votes cast James Mason receiving 286 and Frank Becker 132. Much feeling was injected into the campaign but all is now calm and serene and all citizens are working for the good of the school. The contest demonstrated the interest the people are taking in the institution. It's an encouraging sign.

The annual retreat for the pastors of the diocese will open at St. Joseph's College, near Sunnyvale, on June 22. For years these retreats took place at St. Patrick's Seminary here in July of each year. The new college has made special arrangements for such gatherings.

Ensign Atherton Macondray, who was born in Menlo Park, is one of the young officers, who will be in San Francisco with the big fleet next week. Some years ago the young ensign graduated with honors from the naval academy at Annapolis. He comes from the old pioneer Atherton family at Atherton. The ensign will be considerably entertained while here. During the middle of the month he will leave with his ship on a for months' cruise in Australian waters and will not again visit the scenes of his youth until next fall.

Friday of last week, Worthington Ames, a former resident of Atherton, was elected a school trustee in one of the obscure northern counties by a plurality of one vote. Some years ago Ames married pretty Miss Preston and for years they resided at Atherton, separating some years later. Nothing was heard of Ames until his elevation to the school board. The city papers in telling of the contest refer to Ames as a millionaire. He was not accused of that while residing here.

It is to be regretted that Menlo Park is to benefit by the misfortune of other localities, but this week the the local chamber of commerce received numerous letters from the stricken cyclone districts of Illinois asking for information about Menlo Park and vicinity, the writers planning to move here. One man wanted to know if there was any golf links here which shows that a high-class of citizens desires homes in Menlo Park, where there is perpetual shine and no cyclones of storms. This locality may expect many residents from the stricken area.

To establish a scholarship fund for the College of the Sacred Heart in Melo Park members of the Alumnae of the Convent osf the Sacred Heart in California will hold a bridge and Mah Jongg tea on Saturday afternoon, April 25, in the Hotel Fairmont.

This will mark the first entertainment for the purpose of the scholarship fund to be held by the alumnae, but hereafter it will be an annual function. Although the Convent of the Sacred Heart has been established both in San Francisco and in Menlo Park for many years, it did not rank as a college until four years ago. The scholarship, when founded, will be open to competition to the pupils of both convents. The tables for the entertainment of April 25 are $5 each or $1.25 a ticket, and may be secured by former pupils and friends of the convent, as well as by the alumnae, by applying to Miss Rosario Moran, 1640 Vallejo street.

Mrs. Oliver Kehrlein is president of the alumnae and other members of the board of directors are Mrs. Edward J. Tobin, Mrs. William G. Housten, Mrs. William M. Parker, Mrs. Leslie Dignan, Mrs. Daniel Murphy, Miss Katharine Donohoe, Miss Cecile Brooke, Miss Martha Mohun and Dr. Monica Donovan.

Mrs. Kehrlein, the president, was one of the first graduates of the convent here. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coon and grand-daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Adams of Atherton. The Coons were also well known here The elder people lived near Portola on the Stanford estate many years ago

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Pool will leave Menlo Park Saturday for tehir home in Warrenton, Va., where they will pass the next three months. They plan to return to Menlo Park in July for the summer.

Wilbur Carnduff of Menlo Park is suffering a severe ankle strain as a result of being caught in a cement hoist at the pier of the Dumbarton gridge near Redwood City Tuesday afternoon. The accident occurred when Carnduff went into the hoist to make an adjustment and fellow workers had neglected to shut off the electricity. His plight was discovered in time for the current to be shut off, however, before further damage could result.

Timothy Hopkins this week sold a parcel of property on Market street, San Francisco for $1,000,000. Mr. Hopkins is disposing of his large holdings. No doubt he is planning to sell his acreage here in small subdivisions. The property would be restricted possibly to $10,000 homes. In that event the tract will be destined to become the fashionable district of Menlo Park.

AN ENDORSEMENT FOR CLARENCE R. WALTER AS FIRE COMMISSONER

There will be an election for Fire Commissioner on Monday, April 6th. Clarence R. Walter to be a candidate for reelection. May we, the undersigned, ask your support of Mr. Walter for the following reasons:

He was appointed as one of the original Commission who planned and organized the Menlo Park Fire District, by the Board of Supervisors of San Mateo county in 1916. The reason for appointing was that they thought he could get results.

He has served for nine years and he has gotten results. These results are:

1. The reduction of the insurance rates throughout the district, saving the voters money.

2. The establishment of a Fire Department, said by the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific to be the best country fire department of its size on the entire coast.

3. The ownership by the District of three pieces of motor driven fire apparatus, thoroughly equipped and up-to-date in every particular.

4. The ownership of an alarm siren that can be heard from one end of the district to the other.

5. The ownership of the real estate on which the Fire House stands.

6. The ownership of all the fire hydrants in the district.

8. Absolute freedom from debt.

Nevertheless, the Commission on which Mr. Walter has served since it was founded, has kept the taxes from 60 to 75 per cent under what it was entitled to levy by law. In 1916, the Commission was authorized to levy a tax of $38,000.00. It levied but $16,000.00.

From 1918 to 1924 it was entitled to levy $19,000 each year. One year the tax was as low as $6,000 and for other years the Commission of which Mr. Walter was continuously a member, by careful management and economy, were able to give efficient service at one-half the amount the law allowed them to spend.

The value of this service is again being proved at this time. The Board of Underwriters of the Pacific are now considering a recommendation to all insurance companies to grant a further reduction in insurance rates throughout the district.

Keep a tried, trusted efficient public servant in office by going to the polls without fail, and casting your vote for Clarence R. Walter at the Menlo Fire House on April 6th.

We unqualifiedly endorse his candidacy,

Yours truly,
JOHN MacBAIN, Supervisor, San Mateo County.

What is A One-Cent Sale
It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price—then another item of the same kind for 1 cent. As an illustration: The Standard price of Jonteel Vanishing Cream is 50c. You buy a jar at this price and by paying 1 cent more, or 51c, you get two jars.
Every article in this sale is a high-class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as we sell you every day at regular prices.
This sale was developed by the United Drug Co., as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full-size package of high standard merchandise for 1 cent. It costs money to get customers. The investment in this sale will be well spent if the goods please you.
